Problems

.01

Tedious development work

Developing can be very frustrating and is never an easy process.

.02

Complicated documentation

Most of the tokens don't have an easy documentation and is hard to understand.

.03

Not enough blockchain developers

Since of the emerging blockchain market is growing rapidly, there's a high demand of developers

.04

Overflow blockchain technologies

There are too many different blockchain technologies and it's hard to keep up with the individual coding.

Amount of available jobs – 2015 - 2018

Indeed.com, one of the biggest job portals in the world, published some interesting statistics regarding the rise of Blockchain jobs. It looks like the number of blockchain jobs increased from December 2016 to December 2017 by a staggering 207%. But that's not the end of it. According to the stats, this number has increased by, a scarcely believable 631% since November 2015.

631%

Blockchain market will be worth $20B by 2024

According to Cision, the global blockchain technology market is estimated to accumulate 20 billion dollars in revenue by the year 2024, as evident by blockchain growth statistics. The revenue blockchain achieved in 2015 was just over 315 million dollars; therefore a significant increase in the use and revenue of blockchain is expected in the years ahead.

Technical Architecture.

The Klatyn Champ uses VueJS and Quasar for its frontend application and firebase to store user's data and additional information. KlatynChamp API acts as a middleware between the frontend bApp and its firebase database, smart contract and the Klatyn blockchain network.

User registration, levels and certifications are processed by the smart contract and recorded in the blockchain.
